EVENT REVIEW

By TOYSINBOX PEOPLE

3D Printing at USA Science Engineering Festival

Toysinbox was in the 4th USA Science Engineering Festival, the largest national science festival on April 16-17, 2016 in Washington DC. We had a huge crowd that was interested in 3D printing and 3D scanning. See pic1 and pic 2. One visitor commented that our booth was the most exciting booth. Surely, we will work hard to bring people more 3D printing excitement and joy.

WTOP-FM radio station talked about the 3D printing technology exhibited in this festival and asked a little girl what she did. The girl said slowly and proudly, "I made a flower!". When we heard this from the radio, we got so excited and felt so rewarding. We knew the girl visited us as we were the only exhibit that offered the visitors to 3D print a mini flower. We clearly remembered some adorable little girls come to 3D print flowers.

In addition, in this festival, we also showcased a delta 3d printer built by us. Its name is Pistachio. We will talk more about it in next issue.

3D Printing at Girl Scouts STEM Conference

Toysinbox was invited by the Girl Scouts of Eastern Massachusetts for the fourth annual STEM conference & expo on April 3. Lots of girls visited our booth and took pictures. They love STEM.
